Boran Cattle - The Breed for Africa:

Why Boran?

- Developed for producing beef off natural pastures;
- Resistant to droughts and diseases;
- Quality carcass that compares with European breeds;

- Excellent mothering ability with lots of milk for the calf;
- Hardy cows with low maintenance;
- Quiet temperament, easy handling;
- Cross with any breed for increased beef or milk:

The Redpoll x Boran Cow shown here is the ideal small-holder cow: medium size frame, easy keeping and plenty of milk; fertile, hardy, low maintenance.

Boran x Friesian cow also makes a very efficient dual-purpose cross for both milk and beef

Milky Boran cows, such as this pictured, are used to cross with Dairy bulls, to produce the ideal Small-Holder animal, that is easy to keep, survives droughts and will produce milk, and male progeny are good beef animals.
